Caller: at the time you served as the Minister for Health, who made the order to harvest organs from detained Falun Gong members. It is made by Head of General Logistics Department, Wang Ke (總後衛部長王克)? Or is it made by Central Military Commission (軍委)? Bai: It was made by Chair Jiang. And Jiang gave written instructions for selling kidneys and performing operations. So it should be said that the Military was not the only party that carried out kidney transplantation. Caller: Is it true that Joint Logistics Department (聯勤部) was in charge of detaining a group of Falun Gong members as organ donors? Bai: In my impression, yes, it is true. For after Chair Jiang's instructions were issued, many people have done a lot of works against Falun Gong. Caller: Do you directly lead the military hospitals under Division 1 and Division 2, including Division 40, of Joint Logistics Department. Or are you directly led by them? Bai: We can control those military medical universities, those directly under General Logistics Department. They have been requested again and again. Because Jiang paid lots of attention to this issue. In the end of the conversation, Bai confirms that his term of Minister of Health, General Logistics Department, was 1998 to 2004.		Receiver of the call: the Minister of Health Department of General Office of People's Liberation Army General Logistics Department' (translation reference: https://ipfs.io/ipfs/QmXoypiqW3WknFJnKlwhCnL72vedxQkDDP1mXW6u6co/wiki/People's_Liberation_Army_General_Logistics_Department.html), Bai Shuzhong, had admitted that, during his term of office (1998-2004), Falun Gong practitioners' organs were harvested, under the order of Jiang Zemin.				Bai Shuzhong admitted that Jiang Zemin, former Chinese Communist Party Chief, had "instructed" the harvesting of Falun Gong practitioners' organs for transplantation. Bai said in a telephone investigation, "Back then it was Chairman Jiang ... there was an order, a sort of instruction, that said to carry out such things, organ transplantation. ... Because back then after Chairman Jiang issued the order, we all did a lot of anti-Falun Gong work ..." "...that is to say, it was not just the military who was doing kidney transplants ...." Bo confirms without hesitation that it was Jiang's order. Then the caller continues to say that if Bo joined the organ harvesting activity, Germany might change the level of some meetings. Bo then gets very angry and interrupts the caller, asking the caller to talk to ambassador Ma for this issue rather than talking to him.		The call recipient is "Bo Xilai" and he confirmed that the organ harvesting from Falun Gong practitioners was under the order of Jiang Zemin.				On September 13, 2006, when the then-minister of commerce Bo Xilai accompanied the then-premier Wen Jiabao on a visit to Hamburg, Germany, in a recorded conversation, Bo personally admitted that "Jiang Zemin issued the order of live organ harvesting from Falun Gong practitioners". In this recording, a person who self-claimed to be the First Secretary at Chinese Embassy in Germany asked Bo Xilai to identify who gave the order for live organ harvesting of Falun Gong practitioners. The following are key information from Lu: 1. In Gangan Minzu Hospital, they used to perform organ transplant with Falun Gong practitioner's organ, but now they don't, because it's under strict control now so they cannot get such organs in Guanxi. 2. Lu suggests the caller to go to Dr. Miu Bing in Department of Kidney Transplantation, the Third Affiliated Hospital, Sun Yat-Sen University, Guangzhou. Contact number: 13609038255 All "they" and "them" below from 2.1-2.7 refer to Miu Bing and his hospital. 2.1 It is easy for them to get organs, for they contact the system in the name of the university. 2.2 Just ask them to get you a kidney when they are performing liver transplant surgery. 2.3 The caller asks if they use Falun Gong's practitioner's kidney, Lu replies organ source can come from Falun Gong donors, corpses, or patient's relatives. 2.4 They do 7-8 liver transplant surgeries per week, which can be used for more than 10 kidney transplants. So they have plenty of organs for transplantation. 2.5 They offer dealer price. 2.6 They have a team looking for healthy Falun Gong organ donors nationwide. 2.7 If they cannot get Falun Gong donors, then no one else can. 3. Lu tells the caller that Miu Bing is his university classmate. Just tell him Lu is the introducer then Miu will agree to do the transplant. Miu has lots of experience, so he is familiar with the channel of organ donors. 4. In the end of the conversation, the caller asks Lu how he got Falun Gong donors before. And Lu says: i. Although we used to do transplants with Falun Gong donors, those organs are rare. This is not something under our hospital's control, and it has something to do with bribing the courts. ii. Falun Gong donors are in general around 30s; there are both males and females. Doctors will choose the donor by themselves. Donor will be chosen by matching the type. And there are some methods to ask Falun Gong practitioners to accept blood test, while they have no idea that the purpose of it is for matching organs for transplant. Lu is reluctant to share more information about how they get Falun Gong donors.	phone call from the investigator pretended as Sichuan Province Central Political and Legal Affairs Commission deputy director; phone call receiver Dr. Lu, (in Canton), saying that it is less possible to get FG organs, yet hospitals in Guangzhou might still have access to Falun Gong organs. The call recipient identified himself as Doctor Lu Guoping from Minzu Hospital (phone number 13607720447). This appears to be a follow up phone call to a previous enquiry about liver transplant. In this call, the female caller specified her preference for organs from Falungong donors. The recipient said his hospital could no longer perform this kind of organ transplant operations due to a lack of donor sources. He, however, referred the caller to Dr Miao Bing (phone number 13609038255) of the Department of Heart Transplant, Third Affiliated Hospital at Sun Yat-sen University. He further said that Dr Miao also handled liver transplant.	In answering the caller's question about the source of organs, the recipient said: - the Third Affiliated Hospital often sources organs using Sun Yat-sen University's name and it seems to be quite easy for them to do so. - there's no lack of supply for the Sun Yat-sen hospital because they can perform seven or eight operations a week, using organs from Falungong donors and other sources. - nowadays organs from Falungong donors are still available to those with good connections. Donors are male or female prisoners and they are usually around 30 years of age.	Part of the investigation recording of Guangxi National Hospital doctor Lu Guoping: Investigator: "Do you think they can find a donor body from Falun Gong (practitioners) for me?" Lu: "If you go there it shouldn't be a problem at all." Investigator: "They can find it?" Lu: "I can tell you, it's an easy job for them to get organs." Investigator: "Easy job?" Lu: "Since they do seven or eight liver transplants a week, they can do over ten kidney transplants a week. Every month they do dozens of transplants. So they don't worry about getting organs." The recipient said yes and proceeded to get information about the patient from the caller. The patient was said to be 45 years old and had Type B blood. The recipient asked for the patient to visit him so that he could do a matching to find the right donor. The caller asked how long the patient needed to wait. The call recipient said it was hard to tell. It could be a week. It could be one or two months. It could also be "tomorrow".	The caller asked whether the organ would be from a normal Falungong donor. The recipient said it would be normal. When the caller asked about the age of the donor, the recipient said it's hard to say. The caller asked if a normal Falungong donor could be used, the recipient said he could not discuss this over the phone. He preferred to talk about it face to face after the patient had arrived.	"We may have it (kidney source) as fast as tomorrow." "It can be as fast as within a week. If not that fast, you can have it after waiting for two months, in two months." Investigator: So it is like, please help do quality control. The best would be, having a donor like that type of Falun Gong people, I mean a donor with normal conditions. Liu Dongfu: This, listen to me, there is something that we can discuss after you come here.	2018 Report - no.9

The caller identified himself as a Deputy Director from the Sichuan Provincial Political and Law Committee. The caller asked if Wang could arrange for his relative in Shanghai to have a liver transplant at his hospital. The patient, according to the caller, was 45 years old with Type B blood. He suffered from hepatitis. The recipient said he could meet with the patient the following Monday at the outpatient clinic. The waiting time, according to the recipient would not exceed two weeks for a blood type B patient.	The recipient had refused to directly answer a question about the source of the organ. He preferred to discuss this after he had met with the patient. The recipient also confirmed, when being questioned, that the organ would be removed at a centre (a name was mentioned, but the doctor spoke Mandarin with a strong regional accent, and I was unable to figure out his exact words) and then would be transported for use in the hospital.	It usually takes less than two weeks to arrange a liver transplant operation for Blood Type B patients. Most organs come from outside of the hospital, obtained from the center of brain deaths.	2018 Report - no 10
